Kimberly Milburn is an American mezzo-soprano who is beginning to make her mark on the NYC opera scene. A trained actress with a lyric-dramatic instrument, she is at home in a wide variety of repertoire and styles from Baroque and bel canto to Romantic and new music. Last fall, she performed in scenes productions across her range as Cornelia, Nicklausse, Augusta Tabor, and Mistress Quickly, and as Lucretia with Opera Atlantic. She made a role debut as the Knusperhexe (performing cover) in Hänsel und Gretel with Music On Site. And in January she revisited the role of Dritte Dame in Die Zauberflöte at the Connelly Theater (cond. Eric Kramer). More will be announced soon.

In the 2024/25 season, she returned to the Ridgewood Gilbert & Sullivan Opera Co., revisiting the role of Leila in Iolanthe and covering the title role in a preview concert, under the baton of Rider R. Foster and director Brendan Hartnett. In March, she made her role debut as Suzuki in Madama Butterfly in a revival production by Tami Swartz and Adam Klein conducted by Elizabeth Hastings.

In 2023/24, she was scheduled to perform Carmen outdoors with the No Strings Theatre (Toronto) but withdrew before the rehearsal period began due to illness. The following spring and summer, she portrayed Second Witch in Dido and Aeneas with the Ridgewood Gilbert & Sullivan Opera Co., and she sang Adalgisa in a scene from Norma with the Asian American Music Society for their Kennedy Center emerging artist intensive. She also performed for masterclasses with Kathleen McKellar Ferguson, Joanie Brittingham, Rick Davis, and Kyle Pfortmiller at the REACH and at the Classical Singer convention in Washington, D.C.

Kimberly began the 2022/23 season with the dell'Arte Opera Ensemble, appearing as Ericlea in Monteverdi's Il ritorno d'Ulisse in patria and covering the dramatic mezzo role of Sor Rafaela for the East Coast premiere of Carla Lucero's Juana. After completing her first fall audition season, she was invited to a fully-funded intensive and was a soloist in concert at the REACH at Kennedy Center with the Asian American Music Society, where she also played Zita in a scene from Gianni Schicchi. In February, she made her Symphony Space debut with the Village Light Opera as Leila in Iolanthe. In May, she returned to the Bronx Opera's outreach program to portray Mère Marie in Poulenc's 20th century masterpiece, Dialogues of the Carmelites.

Kimberly was born in Busan, Korea and grew up in the American South. Her first engagements were on the concert stage as soloist in Vaughan Williams' Serenade to Music, Bach's Easter Cantata "Der Himmel Lacht" (both with the Memphis Symphony Orchestra), and Chailley's Suite du XVe Siècle. She made her operatic debut in 2019 as Dritte Dame at Weill Recital Hall (d. Myra Cordell). She was then cast as Ludmila in The Bartered Bride (canceled due to the pandemic) with the Bronx Opera's outreach program.

In the fall of 2021, she joined the voice studio of Michael Paul. She began taking acting classes at the Lee Strasberg Theatre & Film Institute and subsequently enrolled in a full year of drama school at HB Studio. She speaks some French and Italian and is learning to speak German at the Goethe Institut. Offstage, Kimberly is interested in food and wine, travel, current events, and fitness classes. She currently lives in New York City.
